Cellar Champions Still Hold the Minimum Medal.

As usual, the Sox took second money. Some of the fans have almost arrived at the conclusion that the Sox would take second money if they were playing against themselves. The winning of Sunday's game, it may be observed, did not change the odds against Topeka on the several score boards about town. Mr. Hokenson, of the Mines, was tried out last evening. Mr. Hokenson lost the game, all right, but there are able speed would indicate that he had been in the habit of tossing a pick through the carboniferous strata underlying Osage county, rather than tossing the pill over the home plate. He began by putting out the first "Convict" up, and giving the second, Slient Bill" Rapps. a three timer. Then a little squeeze and Rapps came home.

Speer, the Leavenworth boy wonder, who reads Dick Merriwell five-centers, struck out 13 batters. Lazotte, the in-sinciple, went down before him and looked disgusted. Captain Abbott didn't hit anything but the ambient, and six hits was about all they could collect

On the other hand, Hokenson, the muscular, lost his lid and made several mistakes. At one time he tried to make the Leavenworth "Barker" near third take the ball and put out one of

An Expert Selects Best National and American Nines. The Cincinnati Enquirer, one of the best sporting papers in the country, picks the following "all star" teams from the National and American leagues. In the National league there is not such that the state of the in picks the following "all star" teams from the National and American is leagues. In the National league there is not such a wealth of material in the backstop department that a large-flumber of men have to be considered. Of the lot, Kiling of Chicago, is certainly the best. This guiet but alert player has more to do with the success of the lot by the lot. This guiet but alert player has more to do with the success of the lot players than most fans have any idea of. He knows the strong and weak points of every batter in the league, and he never forgets what kind of ball a certain batter can hit, and what kind is a puzzle to him. He unites with brilliant mechanical ability a wise head, an even temper and a perfect knowledge of plays and players. Kling is not so good a batter by many points as Bresnahan, of New York. He is not so good a batter by many points as Bresnahan, of New York. He is not so good a batter by many points as Bresnahan, of New York. He is not so showy a catcher as Dooin, of the Quakers, but taking all his qualities into consideration he is undoubtedly the ablest backstop in the league.

As to the pitcher, there is nothing to say but Mathewson, of the Glants.

Frank Chance, of Chicago, is a legitimate choice for first base, though some may prefer Dan McGann or Fred Tenney. In clever fielding alone the Boston captain has no peer, but in batting and base-running he falls far below the standard set by Chance.

No picked team of National League players would be as strong without Hans Wagner as with him. The big German is not only a wonderful hitter, but a sensational fielder and as good a base-runner as can be found. Dahlen, Tinker, Corcoran and Doolin, all high-class men, are none of them so valuable to a team as the big Pirate.

The outfield is a hard matter to pick, for there are plenty of good men, and it is impossible, to say just how well any three would work together. Sandow Mertes, a heavy hitter and fast and daring on the bases, is a sure choice for left field. In center there is room for much difference of opinion, as there are several high-class men, notable are several high-class men, notable Donlin, of New York; Beaumont of Pitssburg; Seymour, of the Reds, and Thomas, of Philadelphia. There is really no first-class right fielder in the league, at least, no man so good as those who have been pamed for the other positions. Sebring, of Cincinnati and Williamsport, has the most ability in that position, as the sun never seems to bothar him, and he is very fast and a good hitter, when his mind is on his work. His disposition, however, bars him from consideration of dwell is the best fielder and a very intelligent, earnest player, but his hitting is scarcely strong enough to warrant placing him in a picked team. ## KANSAS INDUSTRIES.

Federal Census Bureau Reports a Substantial Growth in Manufactures.

Washington, Aug. 29.—A preliminary summary of the statistics for the manufacturing industries of Kansas for the year ending December 31, 1904, has been prepared by W. M. Stewart, chief statistician of the manufacturers' division of the census bureau. This census is confined to manufacturing establishments with a product of $500 or over, thus excluding neighborhood industries and hand trades such as the building trades, dressmaking, custom millinery, custom sawing and grinding, cobbling and blacksmithing. Including these industries there were reported at the twelfth census, 7,830 establishments, with 35,193 wage-earners and products valued at $172,129,338. These totals are reduced as nearly as possible to a comparative basis and the results presented in tables, which show the total for the state and the three principal cities—Kansas City, Topeka and Wichita—and the totals for the seven principal industries in 1900 and 1905.

The statistics indicate that there has

To manage this picked team there are just two candidates. McGraw and Frank Selee, both of whom have proved their ability by developing champion-ship teams. Selee is out of it at present, so the management would naturally fall on the shoulders of McGraw, pugnacious and intelligent, energetic and indomitable.

Incidentally, Mr. Lingenfelter, Barnes had an option on the Topeka franchise for about two days. The following gob is interesting because of the fact that it is mixed more weird and varied than Dutch hash: A dispatch from Topeka announces that Gene Barnes, manager of the Mets, is negotiating the purchase of the Topeka franchise, and suggests that it will mean the transfer of the Mets to Topeka and the sending of the Topeka franchise, and suggests that it will mean the transfer of the Mets to Topeka and the sending of the Topeka failenders to Oklahoma City. At Wichita Secretary Logan of the Topeka club admitted to a Wichita newspaperman that such a deal is in progress and that President Sheard is anxious to dispose to the baseball interests at Topeka. The story is not given much credence in Oklahoma City, because Barnes is not a majority stockholder in the Oklahoma City baseball association and such a switch as forecasted in the Topeka dispatch would savor almost of larceny in view of the fact that Oklahoma fans recently contributed the funds necessary to purchase new players and recruit the Oklahoma City team to winning four.
